

Osteoallograft™ Periomix™

Why graft in periodontics?

Restores periodontium after extractions.

Reconstructing the periodontium after tooth extractions prevents fractures of the mandible and contributes to patient well-being.

Saves teeth.

Applying bone allograft after bone loss caused by periodontal disease results in reversal of the disease process, probing depth reduction, clinical attachment gain, clinical repair of lost bone, and histologic reconstruction of the attachment apparatus consisting of new bone, cementum, and periodontal ligament. With Osteoallograft™ Periomix™, you can save teeth instead of pulling them.

Osteoinductive.

Real bone allograft is both osteoinductive and osteoconductive. Both properties are needed for optimal bone healing. Bone substitutes that do not contain bone morphogenic proteins are only osteoconductive.

Faster healing and higher bone height fill.

Real, osteoinductive bone achieves faster and higher bone restoration than bone substitutes and bone growth naturally promotes periodontal ligament growth.

Enhances the success of Guided Tissue Regeneration (GTR).

While using bone allograft leads to great results after extractions, it is also an optimal grafting material for use with GTR.
